What you can do with this form

Use this form to request a certificate of residency or overseas tax relief certification, or both, for an individual.

A custodian, tax agent or other representative can also request a certificate of residency on your behalf.

For more information on the certificate of residency and overseas tax relief, see Certificate of residency and overseas tax relief form.

Requirements

During the requested period:

- you must be an Australian resident for tax purposes and not a temporary resident
- your lodgment of Australian tax returns must be up-to-date and each tax return during the specified period must state that you were an Australian resident for tax purposes.

Limitations

The following limitations apply to using the form.

- A separate form must be completed for each client or entity.
- The forms can only be used for 1997 and later years.
- When requesting certification of an overseas tax relief form, the country chosen in the form must have an income tax treaty with Australia. If they don't, we will supply a certificate of residency and return your uncertified overseas tax relief form.
- If you are a tax resident of a treaty country as well as Australia, see Dual tax residents before requesting an overseas tax relief form or certificate.

Completing the form

You must:

- be either a primary contact, custodian, or an authorised contact who can access the income tax account to make this request
- make sure the name, residential, business address and tax file number (TFN) or Australian business number (ABN) supplied in the request matches our current records of the Australian resident.

Certificate of residency period

The applicable periods we can issue a certificate of residency are:

- any past financial or calendar years
- the current calendar year
- the current financial year
- 12 months from the certificate issue date

- a custom date period where the end date doesn't exceed more than 12 months from the certificate issue date.

You can submit a request from 1 November in the current year for the next calendar year (January to December).

Generally, a certificate period can't be greater than 12 months after the date we issue the certificate (date of issue).

For example, if we issue a certificate on 10 January 2022, the certificate period can be up to 10 January 2023. However, you can request a certificate for any past period that you were an Australian resident for tax purposes (but not a temporary resident in that same period).

If we can't confirm your residency for part of the period you request, we'll issue separate certificates for the period we can confirm (for example, before and after the period we couldn't confirm).

Don't request a certificate of residency if you:

- weren't an Australian resident for tax purposes during the requested period
- are an Australian resident who was also a temporary resident during the requested period.
